Nose For Trouble

• Wednesday 7 p.m. It stinks.—C. Blonski, Winnipeg.
Radio or television?

Real Menace

• I would like to say how much I enjoy most of the CBC programs, the Riverboat series in particular is a very welcome change from the westerns. However, I do hope there's a time limit to the contract for Dennis the Menace, and that it's short. I know we can turn the set down—waydown—for this half hour, but is there nothing we can do to get this detestable child turned off for good? The whole program is obnoxious. I feel that Dennis should be left to the cartoons and to the imaginations of the readers thereof.—Miss Betty Leal, Calgary.

Eye-to-Eye

• I am a late-comer to Eye-to-Eye on CBWT, but the programs I have seen convince me it is one of the best things to come from the local studios. I think it compares very favourably with "big brother" Close-Up, and is without doubt a big step forward in local TV production, for which those responsible should be heartily congratulated.—D. N. Rainford, Winnipeg.

Children's Programs

• I would like to thank you for the children's program which is broadcast Saturdays mornings on CBC radio. Except for Kindergarten of the Air, which my pre-school child enjoys, children's programs on radio are rare. All children are not watching TV in the pre-supper hour, and it is at this time particularly that we would appreciate something for them. My children (4, 8, and 11) used to listen avidly to the adventure stories that have been replaced by Teen Tempo, but now the radio is turned off (by them) at this time. Do you not feel that this is a neglected area in radio programming? There are many excellent programs for adults, but what about tomorrow's listeners—the children under 12 years?—Mrs. J. D. McM., Melville, Sask.

This letter has been passed on to our department of children's broadcasts in Toronto.

Prefers Radio

• I'm mad and worried. Mad to have to listen to such utter tosh as Monsoon Road in order not to miss The Archers. Worried because at least two of J. Frank Willis' correspondents have mentioned that The Archers has been removed from the schedule in their district. Please, please do not take off that very entertaining serial. I hope Bernie Johnson will be kept on Much Ado About Music for a very long time; his choice of records is most enjoyable. John Drainie is a splendid story-teller, and it is a pleasant surprise to find that there are so many good Canadian short-story writers. The CBC Times is interesting and useful, and living so far away from the eastern stations the pictures of the various artists and announcers are very enlightening. (We have no TV; we're quiet content with CBC radio). Altogether the CBC gives us many hours of delightful listening, with very few exceptions—Mrs. C. J. Thompson, Edmonton.

Such as "Monsoon Road," which has now been discontinued.

U.S. Visitor

• I have been visiting in Winnipeg for two months, and now that I am to leave I wish to say a word in appreciation of the good fare you are originating in radio and TV. I have enjoyed watching Professor Swinton on Art in Action (although I understood not a word!), and I think Eye-to-Eye is off to a splendid start. On radio I have enjoyed all your talks programs, and in Trans-Canada Matinee the almost-never-failing bright spot has been The Dancers. It has been a fresh experience to have this daily visit with people so roundly drawn and vividly and naturally portrayed—so gay and gloomy, so wise and foolish by turns—even as you and I. I shall miss these friends particularly now that I must leave them. The one TV drama I saw produced locally—Masks at Midnight—held me spellbound. I'm sorry I do not recall the name of the author, but perhaps you do, and can convey my congratulations.—Mrs. Mona Lawrance, Colo., U.S.A.

We do. Congratulations, then, to Marian Waldman, the author not only (Please turn to page 18)

A PROFILE OF JOHN W. DAFOE

From Winnipeg — a 60-minute radio documentary on a great Canadian editor, in the words of those who knew him

WHEN the decision was made to hang Louis Riel, a lanky 18-year-old cub reporter on the Montreal Star got his first big scoop. It was one of many in John Wesley Dafoe's 60 years of vigorous and often fiery newspaper writing and campaigning. At the time of his death in 1944 he was still going strong, a big, shaggy, uncompromising editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, who turned down Lloyd George's offer of knighthood in 1919 with the characteristic reply: "What would I do with a knighthood? I sweep my own snow and mind my own furnace."

Some of the hordes of friends, opponents, fellow workers and relatives he accumulated over the years have recorded their reminiscences of him and they will be presented on CBC Wednesday Night this week in a radio profile of one of the most distinguished and influential journalists Canada has ever produced. The narration is by George V. Ferguson, editor-in-chief of the Montreal Star, former executive editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, and for years chief editorial assistant to Dafoe. Among those taking part from the Free Press are Grant Dexter, editor emeritus and for years Dafoe's Ottawa editor; Bruce Hutchison, former associate editor; James Grey of Calgary and Miss Kennethe Haig, former editorial writers; and Victor Sifton, son of Sir Clifford and present owner and publisher. Many other distinguished Canadians will recall their association with Dafoe, among them John Bird of Ottawa, former editor of the Winnipeg Tribune; Senator T. A. Crerar, longtime crony and political friend; Conservative Senator J. T. Haig of Winnipeg; Frank Underhill, who recalls the Dafoe influence in the west during and after the First World War; John A. Stevenson, Ottawa journalist, who remembers Dafoe during the rough newspaper days in Winnipeg early in the century; Eugene Forsey, who had bitter controversy with Dafoe in the early 1940's over Forsey's book on royal prerogative, and recalls Dafoe from the standpoint of "an uncompromising foe"; and John Dafoe, who talks of his grandfather's great love for his family. They recall his appearance and personality, his methods as working editor, and reveal little-known traits, such as his early efforts to write poetry. And his relations with Prime Ministers Laurier, Borden, King and Bennett are touched upon also.

In 1883 at the age of 17 Dafoe went to Montreal full of energy and ideals from a primitive log farmstead in the Ottawa valley, where his early schooling had included as much cutting cordwood and herding cattle as book learning. But his mother, recognizing his qualities of greatness, saw that he had a few years of further training at the Arnprior High School. After that and his first taste of the hard, colourful battlefield of the newspaper world, nothing could stop him.

George Ferguson recalls him as "a modest and genial man most of

Two U.S. Football Classics

Two TV treats remain for football fans in Canada before the cleats are put away for another season. The CBC television network will carry the U.S. National Football League Final, Sunday December 27th and the Rose Bowl Game, Friday, January 1st.

The National Pro Final will be a rematch of last year's epic battle between the World Champion Baltimore Colts and the challenging New York Giants. Last year's 23-17 overtime Baltimore victory has been termed by Tex Maule of Sports Illustrated, "the greatest football game ever played."

New York is representing the league's Eastern Division, which it dominated with a 10-2 season's record. Baltimore, the best in the Western Division, finished with nine victories in twelve games.

The offense-minded Colts are led by the passing of football's top quarterback Johnny Unitas and the acrobatic catching of Ray Berry. The Giants, noted for their rugged defence, boast one of the game's best linebackers, in All-Pro Sam Huff.

The telecast will originate from Memorial Stadium, in Baltimore.

The annual New Year's feature from Pasadena, California, the Rose Bowl Game, will pit the University of Wisconsin against the

the time, and a rough fighting man the rest of the time, a mixture of qualities very much the way most of us are but in him the qualities were more vivid, more intense, more completely focussed. After you'd met him and talked to him and got to know him you were never, for some queer reason, quite the same again."

A year after joining the Star the backwoods boy was its representative in the parliamentary press gallery in Ottawa, where he was converted to Liberalism by the oratory of Edward Blake. Though it seems incredible by modern teenage standards, he was the first editor of the Ottawa Journal at 19, but resigned the following year to join the Manitoba (later the Winnipeg Free Press). He returned to Montreal in 1892 as chief editor of the Daily Herald, and three years later became editor of the Family Herald and Weekly Star. At the request of Sir Clifford Sifton the Free Press recalled him as editor in chief in 1901, and he was there until he died. It was in the west that he displayed his real capacities. He kept the Free Press hot on the tail of every political struggle in Canada, and under this shrewd and energetic direction it distinguished itself as a powerful advocate of Dominion status. Many of his editorial objectives in this regard are embodied in the Statute of Westminster.

His editorials were lucid, witty, lively, logical and heavily documented. He often wrote violently and could be unsparingly vituperative, as many of his foes found out to their extreme discomfort. The greatness of the man is illustrated in their recollection that no matter how they might hate his stand on various issues, they could not help but admire him. He believed that language should be as respected as religion, and never allowed himself to slip into slangy, careless writing or conversation. He could see through floss to the crux of a situation so quickly that it sometimes seemed as if he kept a crystal ball under his desk. His associates recall that while still a young man his clear judgment was looked

"Inveterate" Moviegoer

An avowed "inveterate moviegoer," the host of CBC-TV's Movies with Manings, now has the movies come to him.

Alan Manings, writer, ex-panelist (One of a Kind, a CBC-TV show of last season) and connoisseur of the celluloid, is well qualified to be host of a weekly movie session. Not only does he "like to go to the show," he once worked in Hollywood writing movie scripts.

The host of Movies with Manings keeps busy one day a week preparing for the Saturday night show. The other working days of the week find him writing for Front Page Challenge and on other free-lance assignments.

On Saturday nights he's liable to be in the living-room of his Toronto apartment, watching himself on television. His appearances on Movies with Manings are filmed in a living-room set in a CBC-TV studio a couple of weeks ahead.

Manings indulges his penchant for conversation when guests occasionally visit him on the show—such as Elwy Yost, of Live a Borrowed Life, who is a part-time film critic. Elwy appeared in Alan's "living-room" during the screening of Madame Curie.

Manings is married to a Toronto and New York fashion model, Margo Lane, and the only other

GERARD ARTHUR

Commonsense French

It has been said that French-speaking Canadians learn English much more easily than their English-speaking compatriots master French. Obviously, it is because they come in contact with English every day—on the street, through the movies and in the normal course of daily life.

Many English-speaking Canadians, however, never meet their French-speaking countrymen and consequently have little opportunity to become familiar with spoken French.

In the CBC's current Saturday afternoon series, Time for French, Gerard Arthur and his wife Sheila attempt to balance the books. They present sketches about everyday situations so that listeners can hear spoken French. The dialogue has a bilingual aspect which rescues the inexperienced-but-game listener.

Although their aim is solely to entertain, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur point out that it is by listening to a second language that one learns to understand it. The sketches have been written by Mr. Arthur especially for the series. Completely bilingual, the Arthurs portray the sketches in the setting of their own home. Monsieur is a French Montrealer and his wife is an English Montrealer.

Since the series began on Oct. 3 listeners have heard Monsieur and Madame conversing while at the breakfast table, while putting the garden to bed for winter, while Monsieur tried (without success) to read his paper in peace, while settling the monthly accounts, and

"Summertime"

About this week's "Ford Star-time" presentation — and others to come

PRODUCER ERIC TILL had just finished video-taping Summertime, a "pastoral comedy" by the Italian playwright Ugo Betti. Now, he was preparing for Aldous Huxley's The Gioconda Smile, a play with the structure of a "who-dun-it" but with a depth of characterization which far exceeds a murder story.

"Summertime was certainly a challenge," he said. "Take the first act. Originally it was set on a verandah which supplied virtually no visual possibilities. So we changed that to a room with a patio—and that was better.

Hectic Scholar

A CBC foreign correspondent
at Oxford

DOUGLAS LA CHANCE, like many North Americans, finds wearing an Oxford gown just a little embarrassing.

Even though a man is 39 and the CBC's Paris correspondent, he is not exempt from Oxford's rigid regulations for students.

La Chance's voice is familiar to listeners of CBC radio news. Television viewers usually see his head framed by the skylines of Algiers, Cairo, Rome or his home ground of Paris, as he reports for CBC-TV News and Newsmagazine.

La Chance's experience over the last eight years in reporting the clashes of sword and speech in places ranging from the Seine to the Tigris has made him an expert in European and Middle Eastern politics. Yet last Christmas he threw this all aside to go to Oxford University to study because he felt "increasingly ignorant" about many of the subjects he had to tackle in his job.

For the past year he has been on leave of absence from the CBC

"Second act takes place on top of a mountain. Now that's really difficult to do in a studio. Furthermore, much of the scene is a pas de deux between two people and it takes work by the two actors to carry it off. I think Perlita Neilsen and Kenneth Haigh did remarkably well."

Summertime tells the story of Francesca (Miss Neilsen) who is in love with Alberto (Kenneth Haigh). Alberto is a simple country lad with sophisticated city ideas, and some delightful comedy results from her attempts to marry him.

Perlita Neilsen first went on the stage as a child in Annie Get Your Gun in London, 1948. Some years later, a critic said of her, "the heartrending cry of the child actress that she is passé at 14 has while trying to invent a cure for a cold.

Besides the weekly sketches, there are brief news and weather reports in French, with explanatory remarks in English.

"The biggest jump we all have to take in learning a second language is learning to understand it as it is spoken, naturally, by those whose language it is," says Mr. Arthur. "The program is arranged in such a way that it can be followed by those who understand very little or no spoken French."

Last season Mr. Arthur read stories in French in a series which received wide acclaim. Even at this early stage, the new sketches on Time for French have drawn favourable comment from listeners across Canada.

Gerard Arthur was born in Montreal and educated in Quebec City, where acting occupied much of his time. In 1935 he began his announcing career in Quebec and went to Montreal in 1937 as chief announcer for the CBC French network. Since then his voice has been associated with many important occasions including French radio network coverage of the Royal visits of 1939 and 1951.

Early in 1940 he was appointed CBC correspondent in France and was transferred to London in June of that year. During the air blitz, his nightly news bulletins were broadcast to France and relayed to the CBC French network.

Mr. Arthur is now head of program operations for the CBC International Service, in Montreal.

The second film is an account of man's efforts to measure time from primitive times to the present.

CBWT—Happyland

When the 1914-18 war came, Happyland Park was forced to close its gates. And as the network series winds up, we say goodbye to: the Altones, now privates in the army; former motorman Kerr Wilson, now a sergeant; Jake Park and his polka band, and all the other members of the friendly gang at the park. Along to join the farewells are the singing Van Dorn Sisters. Ernest Mutimer, producer. From Winnipeg.

up to by older and more important men. He also had great personal warmth and understanding, and many of today's successful journalists remember with gratitude his helpful advice and encouragement in their insecure, struggling days.

Though he maintained a friendly relationship with Clifford Sifton, Free Press owner and publisher and then Minister of the Interior, Dafoe was not always prepared to accept Sifton's policies, and the verbal fur flew on more than one occasion. In 1911, for instance, while Sifton led a group of distinguished and rebellious Liberals against Laurier's reciprocity policy, Dafoe strongly supported it in Sifton's own paper. He championed many western issues—the breaking of the C.P.R.'s railway monopoly on the prairies, lower freight rates, the building of the Hudson Bay Railway—but his interests were international as well. In 1919 he represented the Canadian Press at the Paris Peace Conference, came back convinced that collective security was the only way to secure world peace, and later strongly denounced the democratic powers' failure to oppose Hitler's rise to power. He maintained that war was inevitable the way events were rolling, and continued to do so long after critics had accused him of being anti-British.

It seemed strange to some people that a man as interested in Canadian affairs as Dafoe never ventured into politics, but those who knew him intimately say that though his passion was politics, he preferred his editorial chair.

Less than three months before he died his friends coast to coast gathered in Winnipeg at a testimonial dinner to celebrate his 60 years as a newspaperman. At 77 he was as witty, independent and vigorous as ever, the dean of Canadian journalists, a man who had lived up to the highest standards of his profession. The CBC Wed-

DISCIPLINE FOR CHILDREN. Is the younger generation pampered? Do you wield the rod or spoil the child? Peter Whalley wields a pencil to give viewers his "sketchy" views on this important topic, and since Peter has his tongue in cheek, Fred Davis will pass on Peter's comments for him.

ston—will be in the Open House kitchen today to give us some large-scale advice on large-scale entertaining. Helene is well known to Winnipeg viewers as a professional actress.

ON THE MAP. With the end of the frightening fifties in sight, what can we expect of the 1960's? Dr. Paul Fox of the University of Toronto discusses the past and the future on today's program.

Mary Liz Show

Today Cynthia Coop turns her expert attention to tables as part of her series on how to Know Your Furniture, and show what to look for in design, construction and finish. Gerdyne Crawford has an idea for a shoe carrier that can be easily made and used for the rest of the winter. Professor George Boyes of the University of Manitoba keeps viewers posted on adult education and university extension courses. Jean Mackay, producer. From Winnipeg.

Friendly Giant

More things have turned up in Rusty's book bag — including a faucet — which works! Today's book—"Plink, Plink."

Maggie Muggins

The play's the thing this week. Reuben is getting his chance to play the wolf, and Fitz is trying to be content with his role of Red Riding Hood. Grandmother Frog plays the grandmother, but with this cast things don't run according to plan. In no other version is a helicopter featured, but on Maggie Muggins fairy tales often take unexpected twists.

On Safari

In the first part of today's program Armand and Michaela Dennis go to Paradise Lake, a lake in the crater of an extinct volcano north of Nairobi, where wild life abounds in a lush marshy plain. In the second part of the program they visit a "mangrove jungle" to photograph the "fiddler" or "signalling crab" (a crab that makes odd signalling gestures) and attempt to tame a huge octopus.

Sky King

This week — "Note for a Dam." A madman whose son had been killed during the construction of a dam, puts notes in bottles saying the dam will be blown up.

Meet Your N.H.L. Stars

Fourth in a new series of articles on N.H.L. stars to be seen in action on Saturday night telecasts over the CBC-TV network.

4. BOBBY HULL

When Bobby Hull signed a pro contract with the Chicago Black Hawks in October, 1957, at the age of 18, he became the youngest Hawk ever to skate onto a big league rink. Before he's done he may also be rated the best.

A product of the Chicago farm system, he came up through the minor ranks in Belleville, Woodstock and St. Catharines, Ontario, before trying out with the Hawks in 1957. He impressed the club's brass so much that he was graduated well ahead of schedule and was a smash hit right from the start.

In his first season he collected 47 points (13 goals and 34 assists) and lost out by only four votes to Frank Mahovlich for the N.H.L. "Rookie of the Year" honours.

Last year Hull was moved from center to left wing and upped his scoring total to 50 points and his goal production to 18. Off to a fine start this year he had 14 goals and 14 assists in the Hawks' first 26 games and stood fourth in the league scoring race—quite a feat for a 20-year-old who could still be playing Junior hockey!

Hull, despite his age, is a real take-charge player who revels in the tough going. He works like a beaver, tosses some solid body-checks and steps back from nobody. Still a growing boy, he already packs 195 pounds on his 5-foot 10-inch frame.

Barring accident or injury Hull must be one of the game's super stars for many years to come.—Dennis O'Neill.

Sinclair on this week's show. Fred Davis is moderator.

Ford Startime

This week — "Summertime," a "pastoral comedy" by Ugo Betti, adapted for television by Elspeth Cochrane and starring Kenneth Haigh and Perlita Neilson. Eric Till, producer. From Toronto.

Haigh plays the role of the hero, Alberto; Miss Neilson plays Francesca, the country girl who brings him to his senses when he is almost snared by a sophisticated city girl, Noemi (played by Dawn Greenhalgh). Others in the cast—Ann Casson (as Francesca's Aunt Cleofe), Norman Welsh (as the doctor), Winnifred Dennis (as Alberto's Aunt Ofelia), Ivor Barry (as Noemi's brother, Gon-salvo), Hedley Mattingly (as the postman), and Thomas Paton (as the farmer).

Press Conference

Guest this week is the Hon. J. M. Paul Sauve, Q.C., the premier of Quebec. Successor to Premier Maurice Duplessis, Premier Sauve was formerly Minister of Youth and Social Welfare in the Quebec Cabinet. He has served for 29 years in provincial politics. He became premier of Quebec last September 10.

* * *

The important thing is to give mankind great aims, noble ones that are geared to hundreds of years and not to one or two years. If our aim is merely the survival of tomorrow, then of course, once we survive tomorrow, we have nothing to live for the day after. The lower we have our aims the more certain we are of earlier destruction.—Violinist Yehudi Menuhin on BBC.

member of the Manings menage is a Persian cat named Chou Chou.

"Our only major conflict is caused by the fact that Margo collects antiques wherever she finds them, and I'm a 'modern' extremist," he says.

Manings, who describes himself simply as "a writer," demonstrates his versatility by playing the literary field. In New York, he wrote for such TV headliners as Sid Caesar and Jackie Gleason. In Toronto, he has done writing stints for CBC-TV's Showtime, Barris Beat and Here's Duffy. He recently completed an adaptation of a 15th-century Italian farce, being considered for off-Broadway production. He once spent five years working on the book for I'll Take Tomorrow, a musical spoof on science fiction, in which Hollywood is showing some interest.

Open House

Today, a special New Year's Eve show featuring: Jean Milligan, president of the Royal Scottish Folk Dancing Society (who will recall Hogmanays of the past), dancing by a group from the International Settlement in Toronto, news of other New Years from Mrs. Patel, a parsee from Bombay, and Mrs. Ko, a Chinese Canadian.

CBWT—Mary Liz Show

This New Year's Eve program features the last "best buys" of 1959, with Frances MacKay, another delicious recipe from Mat Gauer's inexhaustible supply, and a year-end review (with a peek at 1960) by Warner Troyer. Then, as a change from the very modern, viewers will pay a filmed visit to the ancient Palace of Minos at Knossos in Crete, see the ruins excavated by Sir Arthur Evans and learn the fascinating story of this magnificent civilization of 1600 B.C. Jean Mackay, producer.

The Millionaire

This week—"Phillip Burnell," with Marvin Miller and Scott Forbes. A man who has recently remarried finds his honeymoon threatened by the memory of his first wife.

This Living World

With Steve Bloomer. This week viewers see how animals adapt themselves for the long winter ahead. There will be a close look at what happens to ants, bees and butterflies during the winter. Announcement of the winners of last week's contest and a word about next week's close the program. From Montreal.

CBWT—Scan

CBC Information Services program. This week Frank Stalley talks with R. S. Lambert, supervisor of CBC school broadcasts department. Mr. Lambert will talk about the new series of national school telecasts which begin January 6.

The Deputy

This week—"Backfire." The people of Silver City turn against Herk Lamson after he mistakenly shoots an escaped prisoner in the back. Simon Fry comes to Herk's aid.

The Man From Blackhawk

This week—"The Biggest Legend." Sam Logan is assigned to a beautiful soprano as one of the "benefits" of her Blackhawk insurance policy. Logan's company seems to be about to take a loss on the policy when a band of vile tempered Sioux stop the singer's stagecoach enroute to Chicago.

New Year's Eve Party

From Toronto, with Gordie Tapp

become a familiar one, so it is a pleasant change to find one who has matured gracefully and successfully into a sensitive actress of promise." The promise became a fact when Miss Neilsen took the lead role in the London production of The Diary of Anne Frank.

Dramatist Ugo Betti studied law, was a judge by profession, which perhaps accounts for the harsh study of reality that characterizes almost all his plays—except Summertime. Although they were acclaimed in Europe for many years, it was not till after Betti's death in 1952 that his works were translated into English.

In the New Year Ford Startime continues to offer prestige dramas and comedies. Among the productions currently planned are:

- The Cocktail Party, by T. S. Eliot, starring Murray Matheson and Bill Hutt, with Helena Hughes and Mary Savidge; produced by Mario Prizek. Basically, the theme for The Cocktail Party is simple; the realization by a small group of people that they must rearrange their relations with one another, with their environment, and with God. Some critics have said of The Cocktail Party that it has revolutionized modern theatre. (More as master of ceremonies. Taking part—dramatic stars Barry Morse, Jack Creley, and Murray Matheson in a series of comedy routines based on Noel Coward material; The Deep River Boys, recently returned from a European tour; The Hi-Lites, a Toronto trio; singers Annabelle Lee and Bill Cole; The Canadettes (12 girl dancers directed by Midge Arthur); Dave Broadfoot, in a monologue entitled "Looking Forward Into the Past;" and a skit featuring Dave Broadfoot, Jill Foster, Alfie Scoop and Pam Hyatt as two couples who invite each other to a New Year's Eve Party, each thinking that the other couple will visit them. Peter Macfarlane, producer.

New Year's Frolic

With emcee Georges LaFleche, vocalists Allan Blye, the Van Dorn sisters, and Bob McMullin's orchestra. Ernest Mutimer, producer. From Winnipeg.

about The Cocktail Party in next week's CBC Times).

- Point of Departure, by Jean Anouilh, starring Beverly Bentley; produced by Paul Almond. Another love story, but this time a tragic one in which the lover disastrously meddles with his fate.

- Tiger at the Gates, by Jean Giraudoux, translated by Christopher Fry; produced by Franz Kraemer. This witty French dramatist examines the Face that Launched a Thousand Ships and finds that war is often inevitable even when none of those who do the fighting really want it. Kenneth Hynan of the Observer (and currently of the New Yorker) has said of Tiger at the Gates, "A masterpiece — the highest peak in the mountain range of modern French theatre."

- The Gioconda Smile, by Aldous Huxley, produced by Eric Till. Originally this was a Huxley short story based on an actual incident. But the play so changes the plot that Huxley considers it completely independent of the story. (Recently Nathan Cohen adapted the play for CBC radio's Stage series.) Briefly, the play tells of a jilted woman who implicates her erstwhile lover in the murder of his wife. Pamela Brown, well-known British actress, who played the role in the 1948 production, stars as Janet, the jilted woman. (She is currently playing in the Broadway production of Shaw's Heartbreak House).

"Television lends a great deal to this play," said Till, "because of the crucial occasions when the audience must see, close-up, the reactions of the characters. For instance, in the first act we see Janet hurrying across to greet her lover, just returned after the death of his wife. The audience knows he has married again; Janet doesn't. The close-up is vital in showing the dawning realization in her face.

"Then again, when Janet is questioning the doctor on how long it takes a man to die by hanging, the audience knows the reason for her macabre interest — and her reactions in close-up can be particularly (and horribly) effective," said Till.

Script is by Erik Watt, narration by David Cruickshank, and music by Bob McMullin. Felix Lazarus, producer. From Toronto.

of "Masks at Midnight," but also of "The Dancers!"

Beethoven Symphonies

• This is just to say thank you for bringing us all the Beethoven symphonies on radio. You seem to realize that most people in our age group (70-plus) had to do without good music for many years before the advent of radio. My thanks are of course due also to all the artists taking part in these performances. Yesterday's presentation of Nos. 8 and 3 was beautiful.—L. K., Swift Current, Sask.

Folk Mass

• Sometime in October you broadcast a portion of the Twentieth-Century Folk Mass by Father Geoffrey Beaumont. Friends and myself were much interested in the broadcast and would very much have liked to hear more of it. It was most refreshing, being in modern secular idiom, with definite jazz influences. What I wish to learn is whether the recording is available in Canada — what label, number, and where obtainable. I have been in touch with Fr. Beaumont himself and he is fairly certain that it is available in Canada. — Miss L. P. Turbayne, Calgary.

This is recorded on the Sparton label, No. SP205, and is available at or through any record store.

From the Clergy

• I would like to express our enjoyment of your Happyland program. It has a fresh and original approach, and the old-time music is given new life and charm by the fine singing of Kerr Wilson and Donna Andert. The quartet grows steadily better, and of course Jake Park's band sets the right mood and pace. In our opinion this is one of the very best entertainment programs produced by CBWT. Please keep it up.—Rev. F. W. Armstrong, Winnipeg.

• Omit such features as How to Be an Interviewer and An Hour With Glenn Gould. We want to know about programs. Your best shows — Colonel Flack, Mike Hammer, some Explorations, R.C.M.P., Walt Disney, Donna Reed. Perry Como this year is terrible, Ed Sullivan good (mostly), Riverboat is outstanding, and San Francisco Beat and wrestling are favourites. Tuesday, with Chevy Show and Startime, is the poorest night. Over all, I would say that radio has generally improved, but TV is poorer or just holding its own.—Canon J. C. B., Winnipeg.

Pro Joan

• I felt I had to say a word for the Joan Fairfax Show, after reading the criticism (Mailbag, Nov. 15-21) that Joan changes her gowns too often. What a ridiculous excuse for disliking a program! Joan is a lovely talented girl. And she is one of our own Canadian products, and we are proud of her. After all, we should feel flattered that Joan changes her gown so often for us—her viewers.—Mrs. K. DeG., Winnipeg.

FRIDAY TV NOTES

Rose Bowl Game

University of Wisconsin (Big Ten champion) vs. University of Washington (Pacific Coast Conference champion). From Pasadena, California.

Open House

LOOKING AHEAD. Fred and Anna have prepared an Open House calendar showing some of the events viewers can look forward to in the coming year.

OPERATION NOAH. The Kariba Dam spans the Zambesi about 200 miles from Victoria falls — and 1,800-foot arc of concrete. For some months after its completion in December, 1958, the waters behind the dam rose at the rate of 30 feet a day, and have been rising steadily since. It was hoped that the rise would be gradual enough to allow the animals in its path to run or swim to safety, but this was not so. Thousands of animals were trapped, and Operation Noah began. This animal rescue operation will be shown in a special film today.

P.M. Party

Audience - participation program for women with emcee Alan Millar, singers Donna Miller and Allan Blye; Rudy Toth and his orchestra, Rex Loring and Daniel the Spaniel. Rudy Toth, at the piano, is joined by his violinist wife, Josephine, in a classical duet. From Toronto.

Prologue to 1960

Taking part — CBC correspondents Douglas La Chance (Paris), Donald Gordon (London), James M. Minifie (Washington), Stanley Burke (United Nations), and Michael Maclear. Among the items to be discussed — Road to the Summit, Current trend in India and China, France and its struggle in North Africa, Drive towards self-rule in Africa, Turmoil in Latin America, and Current trends in space technology. Some isolated news events of 1959 will be discussed, but the emphasis will be on 1959 trends which will continue into 1960. Guest experts taking part are Edward Crankshaw of the London Observer (an expert on Soviet affairs), Patrick Keatley of the Manchester Guardian (an expert on African and Commonwealth affairs), and possibly James Reston of the New York Times and space expert Willy Ley. Norman DePoe is moderator.

The Four Just Men

This week — "Their Man in London." Jack Hawkins stars in this exciting story about a fight to save a young patriot from the ruthless London agents of a corrupt South American dictator.

Stu Phillips - Travellin' Balladeer

STU PHILLIPS, a young Calgary television personality and folk-singer who is currently working on a series of 10 long-playing records featuring the folk songs of each of Canada's provinces, begins a new folk-song series this Saturday (Jan. 2) on CBC radio.

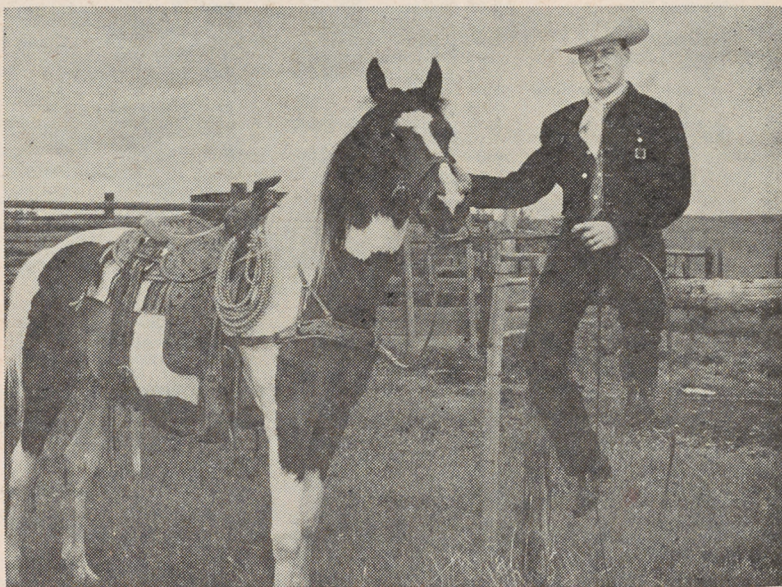

Travellin' Balladeer will be heard weekly on CBW (10:15 a.m.) CBK and CBX (9:15 a.m.).

The first program (see page 32) will include some of the selections included on Stu's first two LP's—Echos of the Canadian Foothills, and Visit Old Quebec With Stu Phillips.

Stu entered radio in Montreal, doing school broadcasts. He arrived in Edmonton in 1950, worked briefly on the now defunct Edmonton Bulletin, and then caught on as the morning disc jockey at radio station CFRN. Thanks to the contacts he made through this job he soon found the audience for his folk-singing, which he had begun at the age of eight in St. Eustache, Quebec. Next he moved on to Vernon, B.C., where he became supervisor of production at radio station CJIB. Out of his stay in the Okanagan Valley came inspiration for the ballad The Bill Miner Train Robbery.

In 1953 Stu returned to Edmonton and radio station CHED. This was the year he was chosen for several lead parts in productions of the Edmonton Light Opera Company, and selected as the most popular Edmonton announcer of the year. His research into folklore continued, and from exhaustive study into the lore of the Indians of Alberta came inspiration for Almighty Voice and The White Stallion. (All three numbers mentioned are included

MUSIC ON RADIO

by BOYD NEEL

THERE have been, I suppose, about a dozen great composers in the history of music, but there have been hundreds of good composers—some of them very good.

Arensky, whose first Piano Trio can be heard on Sunday morning, was certainly among the good composers and is, I think, probably higher up in the category than we usually give him credit for. He was born in Novgorod in 1861 and came from a very musical family, his mother being an excellent pianist and his father, a doctor, a good 'cellist. Today, he is probably best known for his works for two pianos and for the Variations on Tchaikovsky's song, Legend. These well-known Variations are very often played as a string orchestra piece and called Variations on a Theme of Tchaikovsky. Actually, the Variations form the second movement of his String Quartet No. 2, Opus 35, but the rest of the quartet is very seldom heard, which is a pity.

The first Trio, which we are to hear on Sunday morning, is one of the most delightful works of the chamber music repertoire and has given, I suppose, more pleasure to amateurs than any other work of this kind. It is not a piece which one wants to hear often, but some of it is extremely beautiful and it is all delightful to listen to.

We class Arensky among the good composers because he was never great enough to form an unmistakable, individual style of his own and, we must admit, the music is very often derivative. Recently, at a cottage far up in the Laurentians and far away from

POINTS WEST

Sunday, December 27th, is the eve of the 100th anniversary of the first edition of the Nor'Wester . . . the famous newspaper of the Red River settlement. The paper was founded by two young men, William Buckingham and William Coldwell who came to the Red River in the fall of 1859, and was an excellent example of the free-wheeling, no-holds-barred, type of newspaper that has since vanished from the Canadian scene. Miss Aileen Garland of Winnipeg will discuss the activities of the founders of the paper and read selections from early editions, covering such modern topics as sex, politics, and liquor. Cooking School of the Air. Nothing looks more appetizing than a shining savory, golden, roasted-to-perfection, Christmas turkey. And nothing looks more unappetizing than that same bird, somewhat bedraggled, the day after Christmas. Eustella Langdon and Cooking School of the Air come to the rescue—with turkey chartreuse, creamed turkey in attractive rice moulds, or a handsome turkey shortcake. And when you can't bear the thought of turkey ever again, she offers Curried Chicken Breasts, Baked Pork Tenderloin and Goose Salmis. Mrs. Langdon is the CBC's cooking expert.

What Does Johnny Learn to Read?

Primary school textbooks for reading in Ontario are called "Dick and Jane." In this discussion, "Dick and Jane" get a critical once-over. Allan Anderson, Toronto freelance broadcaster, is moderator. Panelists are Lillian Andrews, housewife; John McInnis, writer of primary text books; and Margaret Gerrard, a member of the North York board of education.

Daily Features . . . News commentary by Robert Duffy, recorded music presented by Ruby Mercer, and the reading, by Eric Christmas, is from "Diary of a Nobody" by George and Walter Grossmith. "Diary of a Nobody" is set in Victorian London and is a humorous account of middle-class life. Mr. Pooter, the diarist, has this to say of his diary, "Why should I not keep a diary, pray? I have often seen reminiscences of people I've never even heard of, and I fail to see because I do not happen to be a somebody that my diary should not be interesting—certainly to my wife. Besides, where would Peyps have been if it had not been for his diary?" Eric Christmas, who will read the novel, also played the leading role in a dramatic version of it on CBC radio in the "Stage 51" series.

Everybody has been so busy saluting (or commiserating with) the Russian dogs and American mice and monkeys flying out into space that they have not had time to pay tribute to the gophers whom W.W. MUSIC ON RADIO the CBC Times, the radio was switched on during a performance of this Trio. The five people listening were all completely floored by this music. Who could the composer be? The various guesses were amusing. Saint-Saëns, Dvorak, Tchaikovsky and Rachmaninoff were all suggested. Even Brahms got a vote although we were all fairly certain that if it had been by him, we should have recognized it. I had not heard the work for many, many years, but I did recognize it after about five minutes had gone by and the astonishment of everybody was extremely interesting.

This small episode sent me back to Arensky and his little-played works and I think it is in his chamber music that he probably made his greatest mark. Few people know that there are two Piano Trios and I have never heard the second one at a concert, although in some respects it is more characteristic of Arensky's maturity. Arensky was a great writer of waltzes and in the Scherzo of the second Trio there is a beautiful example of this. Russian composers have often used idealized forms of the waltz in their music. Another splendid waltz of Arensky's occurs in the Piano Quintet, which is probably his best chamber work. The waltz in question is one of the variations on Sur le Pont d'Avignon which form the second movement and we have here some beautiful modulations of an extremely original kind. The finale of the Quintet is a splendid double fugue. I hope the CBC will give it to us very soon, as it is well worth hearing now and then.

I mentioned Saint-Saëns earlier on in connection with Arensky and in many ways the two composers hold similar positions in the music of their respective countries. At the T.S.O. Pop Concert on Sunday afternoon, Susskind is doing the Rouet d'Omphale, one of the best of the French composer's symphonic poems. The spinning wheel has been a godsend to composers throughout the ages and any piece which has to do with it soprano, and Snjolaug Sigurdson, pianist, present a program of songs by Rachmaninoff Tuesday on "Song Album" (7:45 p.m. on all stations).

starts off with the advantage that its rhythmic movement and general style is already fixed. One has only to think of Schubert's Gretchen am Spinnrade and the chorus from the second act of Wagner's Flying Dutchman to realize this. The Rouet d'Omphale has the utmost charm, freshness, suppleness and variety of orchestration and it always keeps within the limits of light colours and crystalline sonorities. In its way it is an orchestral tour de force even though its musical content is very slight. There are very few composers one can think of who could have brought it off so brilliantly.

It is wrong to say that art is in advance of its time. It is a sure indication of its time, although the true nature of any given period is, at first, only recognized by few.—P. Maxwell Davies on BBC.

PRAIRIE PLAYHOUSE

"The Most Wondrous Thing," by Marian Waldman of Winnipeg. Music composed and conducted by Bob McMullin: Gustaf Kristjanson, producer. From Winnipeg. Since a childhood accident had rendered his hands useless, Ben had been only half a man—dependent upon his mother for some of the most elementary needs. He could not even dress or feed himself. Then he is offered a gift for the New Year—the gift of a pair of hands, if he can only say what is the most wondrous thing he can think to do with his pair of hands. This, then, must Ben do if he is to receive the gift he would prize above all others.

studying modern French politics at St. Anthony's College.

His first big assignment on returning to duty recently was to cover the Summit Talks in Paris and subsequent NATO Foreign Ministers' meetings.

His main project at the moment is a thesis on Algeria—a country he has frequently visited for the CBC. But the thing of most value in this year at Oxford has been the chance to do some concentrated reading on European political subjects and history under the guidance of men who know these matters inside out.

La Chance's wife, Claire, a native of Ottawa, and daughter of Edmond Cloutier, formerly the Queen's printer, has accompanied him on a number of CBC assignments. She covered the Grace Kelly-Prince Rainier wedding for the French network while La Chance covered it for the English network.

While in Oxford they lived in a charming three-bedroomed house near Witney, about 10 miles from Oxford, which they rented for £6 (about $15) a week. With them is their infant son Norval, born in Oxford last spring, and two Siamese cats—"very big and arrogant and called Justine and the Marquis de Sade."

Behind them in France they left their six-year-old son Michael, their watery home—a 65-foot twin-screw diesel yacht, Landaway—and a high powered Bristol sports car. "It was a little early to send Michael to school," says La Chance, but we didn't want to interrupt his French education.

"The yacht? It's a fine sea-going vessel. We have always dreamed of sailing it down to the Mediterranean, but we bought it originally to live on because of the sky high Paris rents. It is fitted with an enormous U.S. Navy ship-to-shore radio. I have often thought of trying to call Toronto to do a broadcast. However, on second thought I always go up town to the studio."

For world-wandering La Chance, the best part of his year in Oxford was the quiet life with his family in their cottage. His peace is sometimes broken by a telephone call from London. The CBC never forgets its correspondents, even when they are at Oxford.

One such foray was an "abortive attempt" to get into Poland. With cameraman Phil Pendry, he got as far as Warsaw airport. They were sitting in the airport lounge, pleased with themselves at getting that far, when they were approached by some government officials. Quietly, but forcefully, they were asked to leave the country—the Poles had decided not to admit any more journalists.

The biggest headache for all foreign correspondents is the visa. The second biggest headache once inside is getting film out.

"I have always found that the best way to get a visa is to get as

Leicester Square New Year Party

IT STARTED on CBC radio in Vancouver 20 years ago under the title, Musical Tid-Bits. Harry Pryce was musical director. Then someone had the bright idea of 'cellist Jack Cantor, and harpsichordist Kelsey Jones. Although Buxtehude was a Dane, his music is included in this program because it is in the North German tradition.

LEICESTER SQUARE

A special CBC Wednesday Night edition of a favourite CBC network program. The program on this occasion will suggest the sort of entertainment formerly available in the music halls and vaudeville theatres near New Year's. Harry Pryce conducts the orchestra, and Doreen Hayes is guest singer; with John Dunbar, Eric Vale ("The Old Stager"), and male quartet (tenors Horace Chapman and Len Hayman, basses Tom Wright and Hubert Nowell). Jack Bingham, producer. From Vancouver. (See story this page).

It Looks Like a Big Night Tonight.....Quartet
(A song featured in the British music halls by Marie George)

A Wonderful Thing.....Doreen Hayes
(A sentimental old song associated with one of the great women stars of British entertainment during the First World War—Sally Fisher)

Stepping the Scale.....Orchestra
(A typical vaudeville pit intermission number)

A Miner's Dream of Home.....John Dunbar
(Associated with the British music hall star, Leo Dryden)

Swanee.....Orchestra and Quartet
(George Gershwin's famous tune made a vaudeville hit by Al Jolson)

Bolled Beef and Carrots.....Eric Vale
(One of the famous "food songs" of Harry Champion)

Gold Dust Rag.....Orchestra
(Theme music of a famous negro comic team of the 1920's—"The Gold Dust Twins")

Meet Me Tonight in.....Doreen Hayes and Quartet
(A hit of the year 1909; it sold 2,000,000 copies!)

I Wish You a Happy New Year.....Whole Cast
(A Sir Harry Lauder favourite)

calling it Leicester Square to Broadway. They added a barber-shop quartet to the pit orchestra—and one of the most popular and long running of CBC radio programs began its career on CBC Trans-Canada.

"We don't play anything less than 25 years old," says Harry Pryce, who is still musical director for Leicester Square. "But as that's not much longer than we've been on the air, much of the music written in that time is not our type of music."

What is "our type" of music? "It's the music that mother used to sing us," says producer Jack Bingham—only with the passing of the years, the mothers are turning into grandmothers.

"We decided from the beginning to retain the authentic pit orchestra sound of vaudeville days," says Harry Pryce, "and I think we've done so."

Terence Gibbs, assistant to the director of music for the CBC, agrees. "Leicester Square excels in the nostalgic type of music it plays," he says. "That's why it has lasted twenty years. And that also is why we are having Leicester Square on CBC Wednesday Night during New Year week. Wednesday Night is designed to show the best of every field of broadcasting—and Leicester Square certainly qualifies for that."

Leicester Square's CBC Wednesday Night program will consist of the kind of entertainment formerly available in the music halls and vaudeville theatres near New Year's.

Where does the music for Leicester Square come from? "I've got around 2,000 pieces of music going back to the American Civil War," says Harry, "and then of course our listeners are constantly sending in sheet music which we arrange in the style we want."—And Harry Pryce, who first heard much of this music when his father was musical director for the Walker Theatre in Winnipeg, is one of the few musicians left in North America who can sit down and arrange the numbers in legitimate pit orchestra style without putting in considerable research."

Harry, born in England, came to Canada aged six years, played 'cello for his father when the instrument was bigger than he was, and has worked with many of the biggest names in showbusiness: Jack Benny, Bob Hope, Jimmy Durante (44 shows in 11 days at the Pacific National Exhibition), Alec Templeton and Gracie Fields are but a few. Harry is married to Belle McEwan, who for many years was singer with Leicester Square. Since Belle's retirement, five girls—Betty Phillips, Doreen Hayes, Shirley Chapman, Shirley McDonald and Cora James—have alternated as weekly guests.

It is difficult to see how we could get this far in a story on Leicester Square without mentioning The Old Stager, played for 14 years by Eric Vale. The Old Stager introduces the numbers and provides the setting. Eric may have been carried to a performance in the real Leicester Square before he left his native England at a very early age, but he has never been inside a Broadway music hall. Nevertheless, he has been in vaudeville, one way or another, since he skipped school back in Montreal. He made his first radio appearance in 1921 when a singer had to stand well back from the microphone and bellow. Today he finds the sensitive microphone somewhat restrictive on his artistry.

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

Relax and Enjoy It. The North American attitude to the arts is too materialistic, according to Toronto actress and theatrical producer Araby Lockhart. Instead of sitting back to enjoy what the drama, the book, the concert, has to offer, Americans and Canadians take a critical, "show me," point of view that contributes nothing of themselves to the success of the work. Miss Lockhart, in private life Mrs. John Gray, thinks we should all relax in the presence of art, and enjoy it.

Teenagers Rediscovered. Shirley Brett, former CBC morning commentator in Montreal and now married and living in Vancouver, recently returned to her profession of teaching. Much to her surprise, she discovered that the teenager, whom she's heard maligned and ridiculed on all sides, was essentially a warm, shy and thoughtful human.

Education in Alberta. Senator Donald Cameron of Alberta was chairman of a Royal Commission in that province which reviewed its educational system. In this interview with the CBC's morning commentator in Alberta, Peggy MacFarlane, Senator Cameron discusses the report of the Royal Commission and also gives his own opinions about education. (Repeat of a "Points West" interview).

Bell Ringing. As a special New Year's Eve feature, Matinee today includes a BBC recording of a traditional English art-Bell Ringing.

JAZZ WORKSHOP

A special New Year's Eve edition of "Jazz Workshop" will be presented from Montreal this year, featuring blind pianist Joe Saye. Born in Glasgow, Scotland, Joe Saye came to New York in December, 1955. He has since made several recordings and his group has had excellent critical reviews. He has played at leading night spots in New York and in Nassau, Bahamas, where he also appeared on radio. He has also made various TV appearances. Joe lost his sight in 1925, at the age of two. His special musical tuition was provided by the blind department at the Glasgow school where he was educated. In 1937, bandleader Roy Fox gave Joe his big chance. The following year he did his first radio show which brought him to the attention of Fats Waller. During vaudeville wartime touring, he worked with inimitable Harry Lauder. The sightless pianist formed a trio in 1948 and the next year he even turned actor for an Emlyn Williams play in which he played the part of a bandleader. During the early '50's, Joe Saye and his musicians were frequent guests of Ted Heath's orchestra at the London Palladium. He came to the U.S. on the advice of his good friend George Shearing, another blind jazz pianist from the U.K. who today needs no introduction to jazz enthusiasts in North America.

close as allowed to the country you want to enter and then apply," La Chance said. "Athens is the best spot for the Mediterranean. Jews, Arabs, the West and the communist countries all have missions there. Athens' peculiar easy going charm seems to have made them more amenable than in some other places.

"As for getting out again, well, we always have trouble. The question is whether it's major or minor trouble. The main headache is the cameraman's—I usually travel with Phil Pendry. All eastern European and Middle Eastern countries regard cameras as instruments of the devil. Pendry travels with about 12 so the trouble multiplies.

"We were once held up for three days in Athens because an antagonistic customs man locked up our equipment and then lost the key!"

Not only eastern countries are suspicious. When La Chance was covering the Suez crisis for CBC radio, he was cut off the air by both the British and Egyptian censors because neither side liked the Canadian attitude.

La Chance still regrets the interview he failed to get with Egypt's President Nasser. The President had agreed to the interview just after Suez. La Chance, with cameraman Philippo Berna, put aside plans to leave Egypt when they thought there was a chance to get the interview. They

At the U.N. The United Headquarters in Manhattan is rather quiet this week; delegates to the General Assembly have gone home and routine activities have not yet begun. But there are always continuing projects at the U.N. and today's Matinee reporter Kathleen Teltsch, talks about one of them: a 7,000 mile Pan-Asian highway that will follow the routes of the old caravans and serve much the same purpose, bringing the West to the East and vice versa. Miss Teltsch is U.N. correspondent for the New York Times.

Betty and Her Bachelors. 1960 is Leap Year; spinsters and bachelors take note! Betty Tomlinson, Matinee's hostess, talks to some Toronto bachelors about leap year and gets some inside information about the wiles that bachelors use to evade traps.

Arthur Phelps. Another provocative talk by a former Winnipeg teacher now living in Toronto.

tenor; Tom Wright, bass; and Hubert Nowell, bass) and many of the Pit Orchestra have been on the program for years. Regular singer John Dunbar is a relative newcomer.

The audience for Leicester Square to Broadway stretches right across Canada and deep into the States. (Slightly more than half its fan mail comes from American listeners.) Typical of its audience fidelity is the man who wrote to say he had heard the program in the Yukon, in Connecticut, and in his car in Maryland.

Leicester Square has become a "must" in thousands of Canadian homes every Tuesday night. Although it was originally thought that its appeal would naturally be primarily for older folk, it has been on the air so long that a generation of youngsters has grown up knowing the program because their parents have listened to it week-by-week. One night recently, when producer Jack Bingham renewed a reference book at the Vancouver Public Library, a tall, attractive librarian looked down at him and said, "Oh, this must be for Leicester Square! I've been listening to the program since I was six!"

"New" Sound from CBC Winnipeg

LISTENERS who have noticed a new realism in the sound of musical and dramatic productions from CBC's Winnipeg studios can thank a tall, narrow cabinet installed recently in the master control studio.

The cabinet contains equipment which now makes it possible for producers to control the "liveness"—the amount of reverberation, in any of their studio productions.

"The new artificial reverberation unit gives our programs better quality of sound and added depth and realism," says R. L. Punshon, technical director of radio at CBC Winnipeg.

Mr. Punshon would willingly argue with anyone who felt this was "doctoring" sound in an unnatural way. Actually, Mr. Punshon points out, the purpose of the reverberation unit is simply to make any studio the ideal studio for its purpose at any given moment. The studio that is naturally ideal for a drama production may be far from ideal for a musical program. The reverberation unit makes all studios more versatile.

The heart of the reverberation system is a steel vibrating plate suspended vertically on rubber springs inside its enclosure. A small loudspeaker unit is fastened rigidly to one end of the plate and a microphone is fastened to the other end. A signal fed into the loudspeaker causes the plate to vibrate transversely, and the microphone attached to the other end picks up the vibrations. They are then fed through amplifiers to the TV or radio transmitter. Reverberation time (the time it takes for a sound to diminish almost completely) can be varied, according to the producer's wishes, from a half second to four and a half seconds. Movement of a porous damping plate toward and away from the steel plate varies the reverberation time.

Extraneous acoustical and magnetic fields in the CBC building in Winnipeg presented special problems. The unit had to be suspended on specially designed rubber cushions in a magnetic and acoustically-shielded cabinet. Finding the right piece of steel for the vibrating plate was also an exacting job. It had to be free of minute indentations, precisely flat, and .5 mm. thick. Cold drawn or rolled steel did not meet the requirements. Individual sheets were selected from various manufacturers and hung under tension for several days in order for it to "relax" before being suspended in the cabinet.

waited for weeks. When Nasser granted them a private audience in his home to discuss the questions to be put to him, they thought they had it in the bag.

"Then a Canadian freelance writer put out a violently anti-Nasser story—it was entirely legitimate, but it killed our chance of getting an interview," he recalls.

Getting a world news story these days usually means a great deal of travelling and waiting for visas, so scoops are rare. It isn't often that news breaks on your doorstep.

La Chance was sitting in his Paris office one day in 1958 when he heard shooting down the street. The victim turned out to be Jacques Soustelle, French Minister of Information.

"I recorded the minister's somewhat shaken feelings as he was
